

Subject: intelligence + science + Heart = A Human Intelligence + Science – Heart = ???

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen, love hearts,

(03/02/2020)

I ask everyone to give some thought to the feasibility of my suggestion against global poverty, which I presented 37 years ago to our noble Federal President Karl Carstens.

As I wrote in my letter (my Rebellion) on May 25th, 2019, I wish with all my heart that this earth will finally be ruled by a majority of women, because in many places, more-than-enough money is much more important than the suffering and lives of millions of people who don't even have anything to eat.

I deeply regret that the world will never have a happy future as long as men rule it. Unfortunately, the picture of today on earth and that of history do not let me think otherwise. Unfortunately, the exceptions are not enough to move something or change something.

It is an undeniable fact that women's hearts are much more filled with philanthropy and respect for difference than men's. And women are truly the temples of love, which we urgently need to finally learn from them in order to embrace each other without ifs and buts.

I have always struggled throughout my life to be a useful person to humanity because the painful image on earth has always bothered me of how people suffer, are treated unjustly, and are even brutalized in many places and killed for greed.

Although this misdevelopment may of the world without making life difficult for anyone could be eliminated with the reform of the doctrinal system, which focuses on philanthropy, solidarity (with the helpless in every sense), and mutual respect.

But whatever happens, as a farmer, I will never stop sowing charity in my field. I cannot stop asking why solutions to global poverty are not being explored, most notably for children suffering, being treated like slaves with no schooling/future in the fields, or having to work somewhere.

Please, where is mercy, conscience, compassion, and our values? This earth for sensitive hearts is, in the truest sense of the word, an unbearable hell, as Goethe said. Is the number of sensitive hearts, of true righteous, however, insufficient to turn this hell into a paradise?

Every human being has the undeniable right to earn through physical achievements and intelligence in order to have a good life.
But what can our hearts produce but philanthropy? Aren't they the source of love if they haven't dried up?

This earth cannot have a happy future without mutual love and respect for each other, we will realize that at some point, but certainly with the heart cry of the women much earlier than much too late. (Intelligence + Science + HEART = A Human (Lasting Happy and Painless World for All))

I wish you, your family, and everyone without exception a happy life, but without camouflaged diseases such as hate, racism, arrogance, narcissism, megalomania, exploitation, and greed at the expense of human rights, which can only be cured with the earth of women's love.

(* It is my great hope that the drought in the hearts of the mighty will finally end with some precipitation and begin to blossom in all colors.

With respect, I have a few questions for everyone:

1. Please, who does science serve? Without the exception of humanity, or only for those who can afford such services/products financially?
E.g. medication. Anyone can survive if they have money or live in a prosperous state, but die in agony in bed (!) if they have nothing. Is that humanely acceptable?

What would tomorrow's world look like if we only looked at more-than-enough today, concentrated and no more? Do we want to do without people who hardly have the opportunity to live a normal life without our support to lead them? Is more-than-enough money the holiest of all?

2. In the last year, 100 major producers produced weapons and military services. (Isn't it possible for all buyers and sellers to collect a few percent solidarity surcharge from these anti-poverty products to alleviate people's suffering rather than just for killing?)
